BROKEN DIAMONDS
RT: 90 minutes

LOGLINE
A young writer sees his dream put in jeopardy when he has to take care of his mentally ill sister.

SHORT SYNOPSIS
In the wake of his father’s death, a twenty-something writer sees his dream of moving to Paris put in jeopardy when he’s forced to temporarily take in his wildly unpredictable, mentally ill sister.

LONG SYNOPSIS
Broadway icon and burgeoning screen actor Ben Platt (PITCH PERFECT, THE POLITICIAN) stars as Scott, a twenty-something writer who dreams of moving to Paris. After his father suddenly dies, Scott’s plans are put in jeopardy as he discovers his sister Cindy (acclaimed up-and-comer Lola Kirke, MOZART IN THE JUNGLE) is living in a halfway house for the mentally ill. Despite her wild and unpredictable behavior, Scott puts his life on hold to take her in. BROKEN DIAMONDS poignantly follows these characters as they come to understand the effects of shared childhood trauma on each of their mental health, culminating in life-altering realizations for them both.

DIRECTOR’S STATEMENT
No other film has dealt with the topic of schizophrenia like BROKEN DIAMONDS does — this film makes it real. Everyone has had some kind of experience with someone they know or close to them that has a form of mental illness. In addition to being entertaining, the goal is to have this film break the stigma of mental illness by showing the truth behind it. The film encourages people to be more understanding about this illness and to realize that, when it comes to schizophrenia, there are no antagonists, only victims. The antagonist is the mean and nasty illness itself. Most importantly is that this is the first honest and true screenplay to look at the disease this way. Reality rears its ugly head when Scott and Cindy run into Cindy’s best friend from high school at the Sweet Scoop Ice Cream Shop. Julie recalls how Cindy was the most talented actor in her teens and just assumed that Cindy would be starring in television series and movies now. When she and her friend invite Cindy and Scott to their party, there are embarrassing scenes as the night unfolds. In BROKEN DIAMONDS, audiences will see a film about forgiveness and compassion, and hopefully spark a conversation about what mental illness really is. Schizophrenia is out there, with many people affected by the illness in one way or another. People need to talk about it. We can see disability if someone is in a wheelchair, but we can’t see what is happening in someone’s mind.

Steve was motivated to write this script because it has taken up so much of his life. As the story is so personal, Steve had to trust the producers that took on his personal story to make it into a movie. In Black Label, he found the people he could trust to bring his story to life. Steve couldn’t be happier with the cast chosen and everyone involved.

He wrote this story as a screenplay, as he had never seen schizophrenia shown in a realistic way. This is an opportunity for people to understand what it is really like. The message Steve wants to share is that schizophrenia is a devastating disease that destroys families, and it’s important for people to understand that those afflicted with mental illness aren’t to blame. We can’t expect schizophrenics to act like they are normal, even though that is what they wish for. It is a challenge just to get them on medication, keep on medication and be sure that it is the right medication. Without it, they lose all touch with reality.

Why watch BROKEN DIAMONDS? It is great story that talks about something people haven’t really seen on the subject of schizophrenia, written with humor and irony, told in a unique way. This film is going to touch people.

Black Label Media has produced other films with a message including THE GOOD LIE. For instance, the feature film ONLY THE BRAVE has been screened to help firefighting foundations. Once the distribution plan is in place, plans are to see how this movie can be shared with mental health societies and programs to shine a light on the illness in a real and helpful way. The desire is that the movie will communicate a hopeful message — a morality tale that moves you and make you laugh.

With the support from the medical community and Peter using real people in focus groups, they are able to show the audience how real people deal with the illness. The actors talked to people and watched films and documentaries on the subject to make their characters real. The filmmakers spoke to numerous experts on the disease and had amazing responses from the schizophrenia societies and groups in Los Angeles and in British Columbia.

Black Label Media would like to see the film help increase awareness and understanding of schizophrenia and mental illness. The dream scenario would be to use the feature as a tool for education, for mental health groups to share with their members and for audiences to learn to do for schizophrenics what Scott did in the film — forgive.

LOLA KIRKE (CINDY) Recently, Kirke starred in the Los Angeles-set thriller written and directed by Aaron Katz titled GEMINI, opposite Zoe Kravitz and John Cho. The film was released in March 2018. Kirke also starred in UNTOGETHER alongside Ben Mendelsohn, Jemima Kirke and Jamie Dornan. The film follows the affair between Andrea (Jemima Kirke), a former teen prodigy turned heroin addict who is trying to be a writer now that she is sober, and Nick (Dornan), a writer who has found success with his memoir of war-time bravery. Meanwhile, Andrea’s little sister, Tara (Lola Kirke), finds her solid relationship with her older boyfriend, Martin (Mendelshon), shaken when she is drawn to a charismatic rabbi with an even larger age gap. UNTOGETHER premiered at the 2018 Tribeca Film Festival.

Kirke can also be seen in the original Amazon television series MOZART IN THE JUNGLE as the lead female star, Hailey, which aired on Amazon for four seasons. MOZART IN THE JUNGLE won a Golden Globe award in the category of Best Television Series – Comedy or Musical. The series was nominated for another Golden Globe Award the following year.

Last year, Kirke produced and starred in the Aaron Fisher-Cohen Project titled ACTIVE ADULTS. The film became available on Video on Demand and for digital purchase on November 21, 2017.

On September 30, 2016, Kirke debuted her self-titled EP and subsequently embarked on an 8-stop tour between New York and Los Angeles. Earlier that same year, Kirke appeared in AWOL, alongside Breeda Wool and directed by Deb Shoval. AWOL follows a young woman, Joey, who is in search of direction in her small town. This film premiered at the Tribeca Film Festival in April 2016.
