SPRINTER:

Short Synopsis

A Jamaican teen, burdened by an unstable father and an unruly older brother, hopes a meteoric rise in track-and-field can reunite him with his mother, who has lived illegally in the U.S. for over a decade.

Long Synopsis

SPRINTER tells the story of Akeem Sharp (Dale Elliott), who is set to be Jamaica's next big track-and-field sensation. Akeem hopes a rise in the track-and-field world will take him to the U.S. to reunite him with his mother (Lorraine Toussaint, Orange is the New Black), who has supported the family while living as an illegal resident for over a decade. But Akeem's rising star is weighed down by turmoil at home: a volatile father, and an unruly older brother who insinuates himself into Akeem's career as a means of escaping – or perhaps enhancing – his scam artist hustle. Not only does Akeem have to prove to himself and to everyone that he can succeed, but also overcome the struggles that may ultimately bring him down. The film also stars Kadeem Wilson (Ghett' A Life), Dennis Titus (The Mighty Quinn), Shantol Jackson (Yardie), Bryshere Y. Gray (Empire), and David Alan Grier (In Living Color) with songs by Grammy Award winning artist NE-YO and Jamaican dancehall performer Shenseea.

The film is Executive Produced by Jada Pinkett Smith and Will Smith along with NBA Veteran and NBA Personality Richard Jefferson.

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

I lost my mother somewhat unexpectedly, and way younger than I thought I would have. While trying to process that loss, I got to thinking about the thousands of children growing up in Jamaica and across the Caribbean without their mothers (or fathers) not because of death, but because of the lack of economic opportunities locally and the need for at least one parent to head north in search of work, oftentimes overstaying their visas and never being able to return home without risking the livelihood of their families. In Jamaica these children are called "Barrel Pickney," because of the barrels of clothes, food, and other essentials shipped to them from relatives living overseas. Sprinter is the story of a Barrel Pickney determined to run as fast as he can to reunite his broken family.

ABOUT THE DIRECTOR

Storm Saulter is a filmmaker and visual artist from Negril, Jamaica, on a mission to create universal stories wrapped in the complex social and cultural dynamics of the Caribbean. Storm served as writer, director and cinematographer on his award-winning feature film "Better Mus' Come," hailed by critics as signaling a fresh new movement of independent filmmaking throughout the Caribbean.

DIRECTOR'S Q&A

What's Sprinter about?

Sprinter follows Akeem, a 17-year-old Rastafarian teenager on a track team. His goal is to qualify for the national youth team and go to the World Youth Championships in Philadelphia and reunite with his mother, who's been living there illegally for 10 years. He has a dream of reuniting the family and if he can run fast enough he can make that happen. When he gets there he realises that dream isn't necessarily shared.

What are some of the themes behind the story that interest you?

It's about living out your dreams, but this boy has to realise life isn't quite as straightforward as that. But time tests people and time tests families. I'm interested in exploring that. Families are separated because of economic opportunities elsewhere: it's not just people running across borders but leaving for professional reasons. They can't leave [their new country] and they stay. This is so common and has affected both actors who play Akeem and his older brother... They grew up without their mothers, who grew up in the US working. I was interested in exploring how that affects family.

This all touches on a red-hot topicality

I'm interested in issues of immigration – which is on top of people's minds right now – and how that affects families and the individuals, ultimately.

Is there a personal connection for you to this story?

My personal reason... I lost my mum a lot earlier than I thought would happen. It was rough to deal with and I wondered if there was anything I could do to get back to see her. It got me thinking about this.

As a Caribbean storyteller what is the opportunity here?

In the Caribbean we're so culturally strong and in Jamaica we've always punched above our weight. But there are certain stereotypes associated with that and I'm very interested in breaking those stereotypes. I don't want to tell a story about a working-class boy from the ghetto: this is a middle-class family dealing with the real world. Those images of Rastas smoking ganja on the beach or the gunman from Kingston – it isn't who we are. I'm interested in opening up the scope of Caribbean tales.

Track and field is an important part of Jamaican pride

I'm also interested in exploring the Jamaican track and field world. This country consistently turns out the fastest people in the world with way less resources than others. I come from cinematography. I am really interested in the visuals and atmospherics. I want to do for the running film what Raging Bull did for the boxing film.

Tell us about *Better Mus' Come

It's set in the late 1970s and inspired by the true story of a gang leader / activist whose ideology is failing him. There were a group of guys who were trying to get jobs on a construction site on the other side of the tracks. They couldn't get work [because of where they came from] so they attacked the site and shot it down. They were lured to a military base on the pretense of getting guns and money and Jamaica Defence Force soldiers were waiting and they were massacred. This was the Green Bay Massacre in 1978.

So I wanted to make a story about the type of person who ended up there. In Jamaica we have this image of the faceless gunman who kills and that's how we rationalise our police force going into certain areas and taking people out and I wanted to show the face of one of these people. I tried to make a movie about an individual who was in that time and who was involved.

What were the repercussions of the massacre?

The Green Bay Massacre was a massive scandal which the government was blamed for. They lost the following election. Nobody ever went to jail, nobody got into trouble, but it was a proper military intelligence operation and I wanted to explore that. In school they don't teach about that. I only knew about Green Bay through a dub record. My parents told me the 70s was wild in Jamaica.

CHARACTER BIOS:

Akeem Sharp

Akeem Sharp is brimming with raw talent but no focus. He goes from being a relative nobody to maybe the next big sprinting sensation. But his lack of direction, raging hormones, and unstable home life threaten to knock him off track. Played by Dale Elliott

Germaine Sharp

A charismatic yet diminished former athlete, who is now involved in the shady world of scamming. He sees Akeem's rise as a great business opportunity, or maybe even a chance at redemption. Played by Kadeem Wilson

Garfield Sharp

Suffering from an unknown pain, Garfield tries to be the best father he can. But his demons may be getting the best of him. Played by Dennis Titus

Donna Sharp

She went to America to work as a nurse, and now lives there illegally while supporting her family back home. She longs to re-unite with Akeem, the young son she left behind. Donna encourages him to make it to the World Youth Games in Los Angeles by any means necessary. Played by Lorraine Toussaint

Kerry Hall

A goal oriented country girl who recently transferred to Akeem's high school on a track scholarship. Unlike her new friend and teammate Akeem, she is laser-focused on achieving her full potential on and off the track. Played by Shantol Jackson

Marcus Brick

The brash American track champion and the current World Youth record holder. He claims to be "unbeatable", but Akeem is gunning for his spot. Played by Bryshere Y. Gray
